

There Are Things That Creep In the Night

Composed by John Floyd Campbell

There Are Things That Creep In the Night

There are things that creep in the night,
They make grown men's knees weak at night,
There are things that creep in the night,
They make walls and floors creak at night.
Hearing things that creep and crawl,
I wonder how one sleeps at all,
There are things that creep in the night.

There are things that creep in the night,
They make people shriek late at night,
There are things that creep in the night,
The darkness won't reveal them at night.
Hearing scraping in the hall,
Guarantees to cast a pall,
There are things that creep in the night.

When I am awoken in the night by ghostly sounds,
Counting sheep will seldom be the fix.
I've been told to meditate on peaceful mountain streams,
But all that comes to mind is that ghastly River Styx,
Yes, THAT Styx.

There are things that creep in the night,
They make grown men's knees weak at night,
There are things that creep in the night,
They make walls and floors creak at night.
They go prowling in your dreams,
Making even monsters scream,
Even underneath the sheets
One can't seem to sleep a wink,
Hearing things that creep and crawl at night.
There are things that creep in the night.
